DarkHorse IT Privacy Policy

Last Updated: June 23, 2023

This privacy policy outlines the practices of DarkHorse IT ("we", "us", "our") regarding the collection, use, and disclosure of information that you may provide via our website. Please read it thoroughly before using the site or submitting any information.

1. Information Collection

We believe in the importance of your privacy. We want to emphasize that we do not collect, store, sell, or share any visitor information unless you voluntarily provide it to us. The only time we collect information is when you fill out a contact form.

2. Use of Information

In the event you do provide us with your personal information by filling out a contact form, we use this information solely for the purpose of communicating with you in a relevant manner. We will not sell, share, or disclose your information to any third party.

3. Third Party Websites and Services

Please note that your Internet Service Provider (ISP), web hosts like GoDaddy, and your web browser may collect information about your visit to our site. We do not have control over these third parties and their privacy practices. We encourage you to familiarize yourself with the privacy policies of any third-party sites you visit or services you use.

4. Disclaimer

While we strive to protect your information, we cannot ensure or warrant the security of any information you transmit to us, and you do so at your own risk. In addition, we cannot control and are not responsible for any information collected by third parties, including ISPs, web hosts, and web browsers.

5. Updates

Our Privacy Policy may change from time to time, and all updates will be posted on this page. We encourage you to review the policy periodically to stay informed about our practices.

We value your privacy and are grateful for your trust in us. If you have any questions or concerns regarding this privacy policy, please feel free to contact us.